

WORLD'S NEWS CONDENSED

The United States is not unfriendly with Russia but is unfriendly with a policy that admits of discrimination against American citizens on account of their religion.

Sensational charges published in Russia state that the abrogation of the Russian treaty by the United States was the result of a pact entered into by President Taft and a group of Jewish bankers in America. It is charged that Taft was securing promise of support in his campaign for the presidential renomination. The name of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is mentioned.

An international movement against Russia for the abrogation of treaties may follow the action of the United States in giving notice of abrogation of the Russian-American treaty of 1832 because of limitations in the recognition of pass-ports. It is learned that Jewish associations are preparing to demand an end to the Russian treaty with England, that it be abrogated until the Russian government recognizes all passports presented by the Hebrew citizens of Great Britain.

The correspondent of The London Daily Mail, telegraphing his paper from Berlin, says that the total of the sums borrowed by the German government in New York last summer and fall at a conservative estimate will reach $75,000,000. This resort to American financial aid, which the correspondent describes as unprecedented, was, he says, due to military and naval preparations which might have been precipitated by the German government's policy in Morocco. The money was advanced by the Prussian government as well as to the German National Bank.

With none of his arrogance left, General Bernardo Reyes, once considered the greatest military man of Mexico, is in a little room that serves as quarters of the Linares small garrison. Riding along into Linares Christmas day the gray-haired leader volunteered to surrender to Lieutenant Gorges. Permission was secured to telegraph a formal capitulation to General Genonimo, commander of the third military zone at Monterey. "I called upon the army, I called upon the people," said the broken general, "and no one responded. This attitude, I regarded as a protest and I am resolved not to continue this war against the government. I place myself at your disposition." Reyes asked for himself no guarantees, but pleaded for mercy for the little group of men who have followed him in his wanderings, throughout a large area.

EDWIN BRUSH, MAGICIAN.
A Great Entertainer and Humorist.

Edwin Brush, magician, has come near disproving Lincoln's famous saying by fooling all of the people all of the time for the last half dozen years, and the people seem to enjoy being fooled, in this way at least. A good magician is popular always, and Mr. Brush is plainly in that class.

Those who enjoy a wholesome, forget-your-troubles entertainment should make it a point to see and hear Mr. Brush. He believes heartily in the mission of mirth and holds that a laugh is no less sacred than a tear.

Mr. Brush comes with but one assistant, but he brings with him a large quantity of baggage and stage settings that will please the eye and add to the attractiveness of the entertainment.

CANDIDATE
TRAMMELL

In a communication to the Pensacola Journal, Hon. Park Trammell, candidate for Governor of Florida, says:

"You have kindly asked me to contribute a brief article on the subject, 'Why I Would Like to be Governor,' and I thank you sincerely for the privilege.

"I would like to be governor of Florida because this splendid state has been the home of my lifetime; because her history and traditions are dear to me and have always commanded my deepest interest and sympathy; because my life has been intimately identified with the modern growth and development of the state and with present aspirations of her unusually intelligent and resourceful people; and above all, because if honored with the office of governor, it would be my ambition, my pleasure and my utmost endeavor to so acquit myself in that high station as to render to my fellow Floridians a public service that will redound to their benefit and betterment and to their credit—a service that will merit for me a continuous, in even a larger measure, of the good esteem, which the people have already shown me, and which I so heartily appreciate.

"My conception of service in public office is that the officer should be a live, vital, aggressive force, striving to have his tenure of office marked by jealous and vigilant protection of the public interests and by positive, well-considered and earnest championship of those measures and policies which can be made to improve the social and material interests of the state's people.

"I have never coveted riches, have never devoted my efforts to the accumulation of wealth. But I have always coveted the esteem and confidence of my fellow-men, and have earnestly striven to deserve them. The day is happily passed when a man will be permitted to occupy public office for his own personal enrichment. In my opinion there has been such an awakening of the public conscience and interest in governmental affairs that in this day the people will not only demand, but can and will secure in their public servants the unquestioned virtues of strict integrity in all matters, great and small, and of zealous application of all the officer's faculties to the most useful and beneficial service that can be rendered.

"To the man who has the right conception of his duty, the ambition to serve the people in a public capacity is not for the purpose of enriching himself or any special class in material wealth, but he is moved by the higher and nobler purpose of rendering the best service of which he is capable to the whole people, who have entrusted to him the grave and responsible duty of administering their public business.

"For several years it has been my privilege to serve the people of Florida in one of the administrative offices of their state government. As attorney general I have been thrown in the most direct contact with practically all of the business and the policies of the state and have become familiar with most of its details. This service has aroused my keenest interest, and I would esteem it a great honor and privilege to continue the work in the higher office of governor. In common with all healthy minded men of every vocation, advancement would be very gratifying to me, if it is felt to be deserved.

"From early youth there was kindled in my breast an ambition to be worthy of and to attain to success in life—an ambition that was nurtured by a devoted mother and encouraged by a trust-father, both now called to their reward in a better life. In later years further encouragement was extended by many partial friends who lent a helpful hand along the path of life's struggles. In fulfillment of the fond expectations of loving parents, and of the confidence shown by faithful friends, it would be a source of great pride to me to reach the exalted office of governor and prove true to its highest ideals, thereby offering tribute to the inestimable value of parental love and guidance and justifying the hopes and confidence of loyal and devoted friends."

no room in Florida for that class of individuals. Such men will never succeed anywhere. Neither will the man succeed in Florida who comes here thinking that he knows it all. The man who is not willing to learn how to cultivate the soil in Florida is going to have a hard time of it until he comes around to the Florida methods of doing things. Then he will succeed.

The Tropical Sun printing plant at West Palm Beach was purchased from its owner, the Model Land Company, by J. R. Anthony and associates. While not divulging their names it is understood that the purchasers are all residents and business men of the city. The buyers will take possession of the paper and the plant on January 1st, at which time the lease of the plant held by S. C. Kearley will expire. O. J. Bulfin, of Indinola, will have charge of the editorial department.

An unusual sight which attracted considerable attention was a school of fourteen whales which became beached at Big Pass just off Scranton bay between the bay and Gulf of Mexico several days ago. The whales came in on a high tide and became lodged there and few of them died the others were killed by the people who came out to see them and relieve the animals of their slow process of death on the beach.
